

SUPPORT SERVICES ADMINISTRATIVE REVIEW
DEL MAR COLLEGE
MARKETING ANALYSIS AND SPECIAL PROJECTS
2002 – 2003

Prepared by:
Kathi Simmons
Director of Marketing Analysis & Special Projects

Mission of Support Service Unit

The department of Marketing Analysis and Special Projects purpose is to increase the awareness of potential traditional and non-traditional students as well as the surrounding community of the lifelong educational opportunities offered by Del Mar College.

The mission of the department of Marketing Analysis and Special Projects supports Del Mar College's overall mission to provide access to educational opportunities for all persons without regard to race, color, sex, age, religion, national origin, or disability by encouraging and supporting continuing excellence in instruction and institutional support services at reasonable student cost.

Service Unit Goals

The department of Marketing Analysis and Special Projects purpose is to build College enrollment through recruitment and retention strategies that increase awareness of the lifelong educational opportunities offered by Del Mar College to traditional and non-traditional prospective students as well as building relationships among community groups and organizations.

During the 2002-2003 year the department will accomplish the following goals:

Develop a strategy for building alliances with area school districts.

This goal relates to the importance of building and maintaining the relationships with the area school district administrators. Without the continued support of the school district administrators, Del Mar College representatives would not have the appropriate access to the high school students to inform them of the opportunities at the College. The strategy will include developing a comprehensive calendar of Del Mar College visits as well as campus tours and events. Additionally, on-campus events will be schedules for administrators as well as students.

The goal is for area school districts to have personal contact with representatives of Del Mar College at least one time per semester in order to foster and nurture the building and maintaining of alliances.

Develop a strategy to build alliances with school districts where student participation in higher education is underrepresented.

This goal is related to the THECB initiative to target underrepresented populations. The strategy will target two school districts that have lower rates of college-bound students. Partnership agreements will be negotiated with these districts to allow Del Mar College to provide programs to increase the participation of students in higher education.

The goal is to identify two school districts where student participation in higher education is underrepresented and develop partnership agreements with the districts that will permit Del Mar College to provide programs that will facilitate students enrolling in higher education programs at Del Mar College.

Evaluation

The goal for area school districts to have personal contact with representatives of Del Mar College at least one time per semester in order to foster and nurture the building and maintaining of alliances is evaluated by:

1. Preparation of a comprehensive calendar showing all visits with counselors and administrators.
2. Planning one on-campus recruiting event for several school districts.
3. Planning one on-campus event for school district administrators and counselors.

During the Fall 2002 semester, a joint event with Financial Aid brought administrators from numerous school districts to the campus for a luncheon and presentation on financial aid.

An on-campus recruiting event will be planned for the spring semester.

The goal to identify two school districts where student participation in higher education is underrepresented and develop partnership agreements with the districts that will permit Del Mar College to provide programs that will facilitate students enrolling in higher education programs at Del Mar College is evaluated by:

1. Identifying school districts that will be targeted.
2. Negotiating an agreement with administrators.
3. Setting up an implementation plan for each school district.

An agreement has been negotiated with West Oso High School, which was identified by the state as an underrepresented school district. It was the only district in the Del Mar Service area identified as underrepresented. Plans are underway to identify and negotiate an agreement with another school district. A copy of the agreement is attached.

Copies of unit plans and assessment of unit plans are attached.

Service Unit Functions

The functions of the department of Marketing Analysis and Special Projects consist of:

- Scheduling visits with school district administrators.
- Providing school districts with information about Del Mar College.
- Attending community events by representing Del Mar College.

- Communicating with organizations such as the Chamber of Commerce, Workforce Development Board, Workforce Network, local Navy bases, etc.
- Promoting the educational opportunities of Del Mar College in the community.
- Setting up and attending tradeshow, events, etc.
- Reviewing the activities of the Recruitment and Outreach Department.
- Suggesting new strategies for recruiting students.
- Analyzing recruitment strategies and reviewing effectiveness.

Service Unit Clientele

The department works closely with school district administrators, counselors, and to a more limited extent; teachers. Contact with school administrators is on a weekly basis. Contact is also very frequent with Del Mar College administrators and faculty. The department also meets with potential students on a frequent basis.

The department has frequent contact with community organizations such as the various chambers, Workforce Development Board, community service groups, and churches.

Personnel

The department is staffed with a full-time director and a full-time secretary. The director is an APT position that also has responsibilities in the honors program and the peer-tutoring program. The secretary fulfills responsibilities in the same areas, plus provides secretarial support to Service Learning. At times the manpower is stretched a bit thin, but overall the office gets everything accomplished.

Professional Activities and Development

The Director of Marketing Analysis and Special Projects is a member of the following professional organizations:

- American Association of Registrars and Admissions Officers (AACRAO)
- American Society of Training and Development (ASTD)

Over the last three years the director has been involved in the following projects:

- Organized the Information Center in the Harvin Student Center, which involved redesigning the space, locating funding, and staffing.
- Organized and found funding for the College's participation in the 1st Annual Women's Expo sponsored by the Corpus Christi Caller Times.
- Organized the College's participation in the Buy the Bay Showcase in 2001 and 2002.
- Collaborated with Texas A & M College Station to write a GEAR UP Grant that we were awarded in October 2002.

- Worked with the Recruitment and Outreach office to develop an insert for the view book.
- Worked with the Recruitment and Outreach office on numerous activities.
- Collaborated with the Corpus Christi Caller Times, Coastal Bend Workforce Development Board, and Corpus Christi Chamber of Commerce to develop the Job Center Page, which profiles a specific occupation with a full page layout in the newspaper. Twelve of the pages ran during 2002-2003 (See example attached).
- Participate in the Chamber of Commerce Texas Scholars program.
- Member of Uniform Recruitment and Retention Strategic Planning steering committee.
- Liaison with the Teacher Development Center: provided office furnishings, equipment, supplies, and clerical support.

The director has attended and participated in the following professional development activities:

- Strategic Enrollment Management Annual Conference (AACRAO)
- Student Retention Annual Conference (Noel-Levitz)
- Annual Recruitment and Retention Conference (THECB)
- Keeping Your Students - Effective Retention Strategies (ACAP)

Facilities and Equipment

The workspace and equipment is adequate for the department. The only change would be to have the Recruitment and Retention office in the same location, as it would be far easier to share the secretarial support.

Budget and Expenditures

Budgets for the 2001-2002 and 2002-2003 are attached. There is not a budget for 2000-2001 as it only began operating in the fall of 2000 and was not given the resources. Operating funds that year were drawn from the Dean of Student Development office.

Service Unit Evaluation Summary

The strengths of the program are as follows:

- Commitment of director to work in the community promoting Del Mar College and the ability of the director to bring people together on projects.
- Collaboration with the Recruitment and Outreach office.
- Support of faculty in the recruitment and outreach of potential students.
- Visits made to every school district in the service area each year.

The areas for improvement are:

- Reach out to the nontraditional population for recruiting.
- Unclear objectives relating to retention efforts.

- Need for a system that can track potential student contacts with a follow up system.
- Information Center continues to be a problem due to staffing.

Recommendations:

- Develop strategies for recruiting nontraditional students and identify support.
- Provide funding for a recruitment tracking system.
- Funding is needed to provide to part-time employees for the Information Center in order to have more consistency.
- Changing the name of the office to more clearly delineate the duties as listed in the job description.

THE JOB CENTER

Where/how to get training

Future job opportunities

Education

Teachers working with newborns and children through the fourth grade often have earned a bachelor's degree in early childhood education or child development. Frequently, associate's degrees are required of Head Start teachers, educational assistants in public schools and private schools and providers at childcare centers.

Although many childcare workers get on-the-job training, professional training programs and certification gives them an edge in finding jobs and moving into teaching or management positions. Training is available at colleges and universities. Texas recognizes the Child Development Associate (CDA) credential as a qualification for teachers and childcare directors. Continuing education is also required for childcare employees.

Coastal Bend College and Del Mar College offer a variety of programs in early care and education. The Coastal Bend area boasts the only bachelor's degree in early childhood administration, which is available through the University of the Incarnate Word's Adult Degree Completion Program (ADCaP) at Del Mar College. Both Texas A&M University-Corpus Christi and Texas A&M University-Kingsville accept transfer degrees from Del Mar College and Coastal Bend College into their own bachelor's degree programs in early childhood education.

For more information on federal financial aid programs, call (800) 4FEAID

Internships

Student teaching and internships serve as an important part of teacher preparation programs at colleges and universities. Other childcare training programs, such as professional nanny programs, require students to complete externships in private homes and childcare centers.

Financial Aid

Individuals can apply for grants, scholarships, loans and work-study programs to help cover education costs. To receive federal assistance, students must submit a Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA), which high school students can obtain from their guidance offices and other individuals may pick up from the Financial Aid Offices at both community colleges. Individuals can also find more information on federal financial aid programs and apply electronically by visiting the U.S. Department of Education Web site at www.fafsa.gov or call (800) 433-3243 for more assistance.

FOCUS ON DEMAND CAREERS IN THE COASTAL BEND Early care and education

The field of Early Care and Education encompasses child care, Head Start, public school (early childhood through fourth grade), after-school programs, family day homes, nursery schools, home providers and nanny services. The field incorporates care and education while meeting family needs. There are many positions that range from administration to part-time caregivers.

Although childcare positions frequently offer low pay and limited benefits, trained and certified workers have a much better shot at the best jobs. Only 18 percent of U.S. childcare centers offer fully paid health insurance for teaching staff.

Childcare providers working in private homes include nannies, governesses and in-home providers. Some providers live in the home and receive free room and board as a job benefit. Day care centers, preschools or Head Start programs employ other workers while some childcare providers run centers in their own homes. Daycare and preschool workers spend much of their time organizing activities and games.

The amount of training required depends on the position. Teachers may need college courses or a bachelor's degree, especially if they plan to work in public schools. A teacher's assistant needs an associate's degree or one year of college. In-home workers, such as nannies, can get their training on the job or through professional training programs. Since many parents want a nanny or governess to help educate their children, a college degree is frequently considered an asset.

Opportunities for child-care workers should grow faster than the average for all occupations through the year 2008.

In particular, prospects for nannies and other in-home workers should be excellent as demand continues to outstrip the supply of qualified applicants.

What you wear

Most teachers working with young children wear casual, comfortable clothing that allows freedom of movement for bending, lifting and carrying. Clothing should be easy to care for as there may be occasional spills.

QA

Q: Is working in child care physically demanding?

A: Workers in this field are constantly standing, walking, bending, stooping and lifting while taking care of children. So, yes, this work can be physically demanding as well as emotionally taxing. Childcare workers must always stay alert, anticipate and prevent trouble, deal with disruptive children and provide effective discipline.

Q: Is there a minimum age requirement for workers in a childcare facility?

A: Texas' minimum standards require teachers to be at least age 18 and directors age 21.

Q: Why do people who provide child care need training?

A: The quality of experiences provided during the early years of life establishes the foundation for later learning. The single most important factor in children's quality experience is the professional preparation of the teacher or caregiver.

Q: Has the scientific data about early brain development influenced teacher preparation programs?

A: Quality teacher preparation programs are constantly upgrading or revising their curricula to incorporate new findings. Parents, other educators and the corporate world are recognizing the importance of the early years.
